

LOOKING A LOT LIKE CHRISTMAS Suddenly a "low" month is upon us. Here comes that rush of joy that just comes naturally with the country's best loved holiday. Watch the multi-race's parade of lights and colors. Breathe in the season's singular scents. Feel the mood turn nostalgic for all those memories of Christmases past. Remember the hopes of all the poor and all the love that started it all in a manger in Bethlehem. BY JESSICA KIM

'It's a blessing PH spared'

7.6 quake 'equivalent to 32 Hiroshima atomic bombs'

By G1 Yap

THE EARTHQUAKE that struck off the east coast of the Philippines on Friday night packed energy "equivalent to 32 Hiroshima atomic bombs," but a combination of factors spared the Filipinos destruction from a catastrophe, scientists said yesterday.

Director Renato Solidum of the and Seismology (Phivolcs) said the Philippine Institute of Volcanology 7.6-magnitude quake would have been more strongly felt had it epicenter been on land or if there was more vertical displacement of ocean waves, triggering a destructive tsunami, as what happened in the March 11 quake that killed thousands of people in southern India and Sri Lanka.

Asked if he considered it a miracle, Solidum replied: "It's always a blessing when damage from an earthquake is minimal. I believe in God... but there are scientific explanations for what happened."

"We were lucky," said University of the Philippines (UP) geologist Alfredo Mula-Laguna. He said the Philippines was fortunate that the earthquake did not start the conditions of a large-scale disaster: power, proximity and the kind of structure in the affected places.

The 7.6-magnitude earthquake struck 196 kilometers east of Gubat town, Eastern Samar, at a depth of 34.9 km, the US Geological Survey (USGS) said. The Phivolcs placed the epicenter a bit further at 112 km east of Gubat, in the Philippine Trench.

PEOPLE AND PRAYERS: Aika says that's what kept them going.

Aika Robredo has become a household word

By Philip C. Tibayan

UNTIL the fatal plane crash of her father, Interior Secretary Jesse Robredo, Jessica Marie "Aika" Robredo has not been in the public eye. She appeared on national TV on the second day of the upcoming three-day wake—asking for word on her father and his missing plane.

She had presence. She was composed, articulate, self-possessed for someone who was not used to the limelight and public speaking. The media sense beyond her 24 years.

The wake on radio took action.

Simple outdoors fan helps transform forests, villages

By Terra Quinsanda

IN THE FORESTS of Indonesia, community loggers control the cutting and replanting of trees, turning the business into a sustainable enterprise that leaves the land as green as when they found it. In coastal communities, villagers have turned their backs from destructive fishing and learned sustainable practices, balancing conservation efforts and their need to make a living.

AFTER his graduation from kindergarten in Batangas, Gio Chua started getting nagging headaches. His parents brought him to a community hospital where he was diagnosed with acute myeloid leukemia. Over time, his condition worsened and he suffered a stroke. A CT scan revealed a brain tumor. The doctor at the provincial hospital told him he had one month to live. That was in 2010.

Nonetheless, Gio and his family moved to Manila, where they were told that there was hope for Gio. The family has been staying for over a year at Child Haus, a temporary shelter for underprivileged parents and their children who are undergoing medical treatment in Manila.

'Genghis Khan' lost, and found

By Bryan San Diego Jr.

Editorial Director, Sun

WHERE in the world is "Genghis Khan?"

The plans of the first ever Filipino movie to be shown at the Venice Film Festival in 2012 went lost—and found. The original "Genghis Khan" by high-definition and digital cinema package (DCP) format, will have its grand premiere at this year's Venice Film Festival on Sept. 6, the same day that actor Benigno Aquino III, Jr. died.

It's a story, reminiscent of "Genghis Khan" in Venice, where it is compared for the Golden Lion and reportedly drew more from the audience's imagination.

But the filmmaker was not without a challenge.

It was complicated. GENGIS/AN

Karate, batons for traffic aides to ward off hotheads

By Jayme T. Gaud

THAT'S one traffic enforcer who dance while on duty. Now they could be doing karate as well.

The Metropolitan Manila Development Authority (MMDA) is considering equipping its traffic enforcers with martial arts skills and batons, after the attack on a traffic aide by a motorist in Quezon City last month.

MMDA chair Francis Telante said the agency thought of self-defense training for its traffic enforcers after a cigarette company executive said he had Robert D. Carabana physically and verbally assaulted MMDA enforcer Juanito Paredes after a traffic altercation.

Envoy to China: US presence good

BEIJING—US ambassador to Beijing Gary Locke on Sunday said in rare China's press that Washington wanted to turn it into a "strong, stable, and successful" country, a goal that was not targeted to a single society.

"We strongly believe, and I believe most in the region would agree, that our return to presence here is beneficial to the common interests of the region and necessary for the continued viability of the Asia Pacific," said Locke.

"Our steady presence is our strength and our commitment."

Karate, batons

On Aug. 11, the incident was caught by another student and posted on YouTube.

Locke's visit was widely publicized and led to a massive online protest against the USMC's presence in the city and the USMC's presence in the city.

"We are not interested in being a target of anti-American sentiment," Locke said. "We are interested in being a target of anti-American sentiment."

He said another measure being considered was equipping police officers with batons, which they would use if they feel their safety was being threatened.

"We don't have that right now because it's a little expensive, but we might look into it," Locke said.

USMC's presence in the city is a source of controversy for some.

Locke said he is not the only visitor who has been attacked in the city.

"The incident was caught by another student and posted on YouTube."

QUAKE EPICENTER Phivolcs lead Renato Solidum points to the epicenter of the 7.6-magnitude quake that struck the eastern part of the country during a press conference in Quezon City on Friday night.

"Typically a large magnitude earthquake should generate a large-scale tsunami," Solidum said. "That was also the problem of the US Pacific Tsunami Warning Center so when it did not happen, we did a review and concluded the earthquake was not a tsunami."

Varying intensities

On Friday, the Phivolcs report of earthquake intensities ranging from 1 to 7 mostly concentrated along the Pacific coast. Intensity 7 was registered in the towns of Gelson, Oroquieta, San Mateo, and San Vicente.

Isidro said the quake caused a landslide in Cagayan de Oro City and partially damaged the Burayag Lapan barangay in Cagayan de Oro City, but no deaths or injuries were reported.

people would feel an intensity 7 quake strongly with considerable damage to poorly built structures, cracks on roads and lands, heavy objects and items falling, and most people are frightened and run outside."

On the other hand, according to the quake intensity scale, intensity 6 was registered in the towns of Gelson, Oroquieta, San Mateo, and San Vicente.

Solar-powered rural entrepreneurs

By Alfonso Rango on Contributor

GEMMA Alag is a typical woman in a rural village. She manages the household, helps her farmer-husband, and takes care of their three young children.

And like every struggling worker of Barangay Marling in the mountains of Davao City, she had accepted the notion that she could not rely on electricity service to power down her domestic duties. Her child, Alvin, taught to be home-work under a flickering gas lamp.

She finally finally experienced the convenience of light in April when the Alliance for Mindanao and Multi-regional Renewable Energy (AMRE) Development Program brought solar home systems and solar lanterns to the village.

AMRE is a non-profit, non-aid agency sponsored by the U.S. Agency for International Development, in collaboration with the Department of Energy. Implemented by the U.S.-based nonprofit group Pivotal Foundation, it has brought an alternative energy source to off-grid communities, mostly in Mindanao, using renewable energy technologies such as solar and water hydroelectricity.

Like a beacon

For Gemma, light coming from solar photovoltaic (PV) systems was like a beacon, guiding her along a path never before taken by a Marling woman—that of a solar entrepreneur. The journey began before the technology was introduced to the area.

In October last year, the Well of Life, a Davao-based non-profit organization helping people pursue organic farming and livelihood projects, sought out Amey and suggested a household electrification project in Marling. Light home systems had first been launched in two neighboring villages the previous year.

Amey was then selling out a new phone called the Solar Development Foundation (SDF), which would help facilitate the commercial sale and maintenance of PV systems in the under-served rural areas. The package also included training and delivery mechanisms that are affordable to households.

The Well of Life restored a woman's autonomy, of which Gemma is a member, which was formed years back by a village council and remained in the Marling Light House Association (MLHA).

Empowering women

It was a recognition of women's natural nurturing position, as well as their capacity for long-term care and maintenance of renewable energy systems, that Amey responded to the Well of Life project.

Early this year, Amey held week-long training sessions on PV operation, maintenance and troubleshooting in the cities of Pagadian, Dipolog, Zamboanga and Cotabato, which drew a total of 40 women from project sites across Mindanao.

While their husbands took jobs in the fields and big cities, the women stay in the community as they are the first to be recruited when basic necessities run out in their households, the women will certainly not allow a small, untrained community such as light to be snatched away from them because of poor maintenance.

It took three months to prepare the women for the new undertaking. They learned the skills of a technician and an entrepreneur. They were also able arrange a combination of solar lanterns and two solar PV battery charging stations, and managing to extend the hours of light in many more households in the village.

The MLHA, which had 150 members, has grown to over 200.

Fee collection

A few weeks into the project implementation, the members were able to collect P3,000 in participation fees and earn eight per cent from customers on the basis of own income. The amount included PV battery lanterns, battery packs and other accessories they bought the equipment at the station.

The association will add small solar chargers with solar and solar-powered lanterns for charging cell phones and PDA, and power up small LED lights for task lighting in their homes of solar PV products.

In part of Amey's continuing support in building solar entrepreneurs, it will give the MLHA 10 units of small solar chargers as incentives to clients buying PV products in cash or those operating a cell phone-charging business.

The small PV per night for solar lanterns, said, that the MLHA's efforts are largely based on the amount the residents spend for lanterns. Households spend P150 to P200, including transportation costs, monthly for lanterns.

Business expansion

Under the loan-to-own scheme, the residents can own the lantern after 25 months of paying for as low as P200 a month, because of its affordability, it is no wonder that many households are now using solar-powered lanterns.

In fact, the women's organization has not even reached a tenth of the number. Only 10 solar lanterns are being loaned to a village of more than 2,000 families.

The women's association hopes to solve the situation by partnering with the Center for Agriculture and Rural Development, a microfinance institution, in expanding the business and possibly getting more solar PV equipment.

This way, the benefits of light may reach the rest of the community and no member shall have to watch her children choke on lanterns kept under a lamp.

The author is a former information, education and communication officer of Amey.

In Maguindanao, families find life on the run becoming normal

By Jocelyn Phelan
Maguindanao

OBLANDO Santos was woken from sleep as his parents dragged him to safety. Outside their home in Barangay Suring in Ampatuan, Maguindanao, armed men were on a rampage.

That was 12 years ago.

On Aug. 6, when Islamic fighters with a signature from a distant past came back, Santos, now 40 years old, gathered his children and grandchildren to take them from their village to the area of guerrilla-free towns. They were not able to go far, however, as members of the Bangsamoro Islamic Freedom Fighters (BIFF) fought up with them and other fleeing villagers and held them hostage for five hours.

When his family and 300 other families finally made it to the evacuation centers, Santos could not help but become emotional. "It's like living in a constant hell—hellfire. Disrupted education for the children and other opportunities."

He said those generations of his family had lived through decades of violence in Maguindanao and he felt hopeless that there would ever be an end to the bloodshed.

AN ELDERLY woman who has been witness to all his life's events is a member of the Bangsamoro Islamic Freedom Fighters (BIFF).

Santos said that even he was 3 years old, his family had been no other life than one of fear, avoiding one clan or the other.

When his father took the family back to Marling in 1976, he was often fleeing from fighting in the village between those clans and government soldiers. Santos said he thought his family would finally find peace. "I was wrong. A year later, we pushed our things again because of rebel attacks and clashes with soldiers," he said.

MLFF attacks

In 1992, members of the Moro National Liberation Front (MNLF) attacked the village, driving away hundreds of residents.

"It's like an on-and-off situation. After the military cleared the area and we had peace, we had to go back to our normal life," Santos said.

When negotiations with the MLFF succeeded in 1996, Santos said he thought the cycle of violence had ended. But the splinter Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF) was not part of the 1996 peace and the cycle of violence was not over.

in an evacuation center every year."

His son, Michael, is now 23 and has a family of his own. Michael said his first time traveling as a child was too complicated to remember.

"(But) as years go on, I understand little by little the reason why we always have no peace," he said, as he looked at his son, John Michael, 5.

"My son was more than a year old when he experienced being an evacuee. I do not know when he will experience peace," he said.

Peace talks

Marcel Sabido, now 45, said he was worried about the future of new generations of Maguindanao. Sabido said that as a child, he had suffered from trauma, the loss of his children and grandchildren suffering from the same. "When will this end?" he asked.

He said people wanted to pin their hopes on ongoing peace talks between the government and the MILF, but the violence that keeps erupting there out of their homes is stopping their strength, even that which is needed to join talks.

"We believe that once if the government signs peace agreements with the MILF, the problems in Mindanao will end there," said Sabido.

"Look at what's happening now. While the government is talking peace with the MILF, the other group has merged," he said, referring to the BIFF or, originally, MILF leader Marik Sabido.

Maguindanao, MILF chief negotiator, said the only solution to the cycle of violence is a real solution to the BIFF problem.

"It's similar to the case of a sick person. The doctor needs to figure out the root cause of the disease and give the patient the right prescription. We need the right prescription where we can give our own land—our own home—and not the logic to money and not necessarily separating this from that the government," he said.

Marcel Sabido, MILF chief negotiator said that even if the MILF had down its arms to a peace deal, new groups would emerge within the BIFF people group who they have been demanding for decades—there own territory under the concept of one nation, two governments.

"We are not trying to turn a new nation, we simply need to govern on our own and decide what is best for us," he said.

It's like an on-and-off situation

Putin calls for 'leap forward' Stalin style

MOSCOW—Russia—Russia needs a "leap forward" to rejuvenate its sprawling defense industry, President Vladimir Putin said on Friday, harkening back to the ambitious industrialization carried out by Soviet dictator Josef Stalin in the run-up to World War II.

"We should carry out the same powerful, self-renewing leap forward in modernization of the defense industry as the one carried out in the 1930s," Putin told his Security Council, outlining increasing military needs.

Stalin, who ruled the Soviet empire with an iron fist for 27 years, in Moscow for the death of about six million people but also is praised by many Russians for winning the war and industrializing the country.

Putin made renewed industrialization a priority during his third term in the Kremlin which started in May, said the largest projects of his 12-year rule. He concluded that the defense industry, one of the heart of the Soviet economy, needs reform.

"Unfortunately many of our enterprises are technologically stuck in the previous century," Putin said, complaining about poor discipline in plants working on more defense orders.

In the 1930s Soviet leaders industrialized a rural money economy by civil war and an industrial economy using terror and coercion to impose strict discipline at new plants built across the vast country.

of a 1948 letter from Stalin to top Soviet managers and accompanied it with a cartoon warning: "Self-murderers of improving discipline abroad."

Stalin's letter to the managers said: "I give you six or seven days to launch mass production of machine-gun cartridges. If production does not start on time, the government will take over control of the plant and shoot all the trouble-makers."

"Of course, it was a joke," Rogozin told reporters regarding his posting but added that letters would not be ignored.

"Our satellites are telling, our ships are sinking, we had seven years failure in the last 50 months but we are single plants left the consequences," he said after the council session.

"The culprits should come on stage. The country should know them."

'Troubling ineptitude' at US nuke bomb plant

WASHINGTON—Officials at a US government plant for storing weapons-grade uranium failed to spot activities, including an 82-year-old man, who cut through its fence and fired a rifle on an officer's car and on his car.

The report from the Energy Department's defense general, Gregory Frobisher, criticized multiple failures of top-level and security systems and "troubling displays of ineptitude" at the 3-11 facility in Oak Ridge, Tennessee, in July.

Three commercial activities, including an 82-year-old man, were not initially spotted or detained as they cut through three perimeter fences on July 26.

They passed through and drove into they said was broken blood on the outer wall of a building where highly enriched uranium, a key component of nuclear bombs, is stored.

The building they considered was built after the Sept. 11, 2001 al-Qaida attacks on New York and Washington and had been previously named in "The West Gate of uranium" by a senior government official because of its security features.

The facility holds the largest inventory of nuclear material in the world, said Robert Abrams of the Institute for Policy Studies, who was a senior Energy Department official in the 1990s and is an expert on the US nuclear weapons program.

"It should be one of the most well-protected facilities in the United States but that means," said Abrams, who said the breach is a security emergency.

"This is the kind of lapse that one would expect leads to 9/11," he said, noting that some senior government officials of nuclear are needed.

The United States has been at the forefront of international efforts to stem the proliferation of nuclear weapons to countries like Iran and North Korea. The US has called nuclear weapons the "single biggest threat" to US security, given al-Qaida's stated desire to obtain such weapons.

By now few officials from the Energy Department will have working eyes the world's largest stockpile of nuclear weapons on the floors of Representative's Energy and Commerce Committee subcommittee, 22.

SMART first to launch LTE in the Philippines

Wireless leader SMART Communications launched the world's fastest 4G mobile broadband technology, the Philippines' first commercial (LTE) Long Term Evolution (last August 25, 2012). Available at Plan 3500, SMART's LTE offering marks a milestone in Philippine mobile broadband history and elevates the country to the ranks of Germany, Japan, the UK, and others that have launched LTE.

Held at Newport Plaza of the Resorts World Manila, the epic launch event hosted by RK 93.3's Gina Quiambon and Sports 5's Riza Diaz, was packed with rich buffs, gamers, celebrities and personalities. At different hubs set-up for music downloads, movie streaming, and online gaming, everyone experienced the power of LTE first-hand. Delivering highest-ever speeds of up to 42Mbps, SMART LTE made good on its promise of downloading an HD movie in minutes, not hours; a full music album in seconds, not minutes; and real-time gaming with absolutely no lag.

In fact, SMART LTE seemed all with an exclusive link that had never been done before, a live online match between South Korea's Master Kim "Classic" Hong-an and our very own Paolo "MacProble" Pobador on Starcraft II. Playing in Manila, the South Korean took game 1 while the Filipino, playing all the way from Cebu, took game 2. Sudden Death was won by the Korean in an epic show of strategy and speed.

The wait is now over. SMART LTE is now available at Plan 3500 with a free modem and 18GB consumable data per month. But as a bonus, subscribers can enjoy unlimited LTE usage until October 25, 2012. For more information about the SMART LTE, go to www.smart.com.ph/lte.

Canadian haircare brand bullish on Philippines

By Margie C. Enriquez
Contributor

A CANADIAN haircare brand is making a bid to be a major player in the hair-care and salon industry.

Under the brand name Cynos, it is selling itself as a high performance product at an affordable price.

In just 18 months, it expanded its marketing from 200 accounts to 400. The most notable growth, the haircare executives, attribute to nearly 30 years out because it addresses the hair-care needs of most Filipinos. Jimmy Hale (Marketing & Sales).

The brand distributor, Cynos Canada Inc., is based in Toronto.

"We set up local launch offices in Cebu and Davao, where the salon business is booming. This motivated our need to our clients. We had to get selling time to promote the hair care salon. The salon owners and technical advisors visited the us, to see all the products. We conducted salon demonstrations to enhance the clients on how to use our brands. Jimmy Hale and others were accompanied by our sales products such as hair styling, treatments, digital press in parlor salon," explains Hale.

One marketing manager for New York City, New York.

Members of the technical team, who have become brand ambassadors, are helping sales professionals.

Cynos launched the product in Toronto, Cebu, Manila, and Davao, and in the Philippines.

Earlier, the California-based hair care brand introduced the Brazilian Blowout, a popular hair straightening treatment that uses liquid keratin and a special sealant with heat. Only 5-10 minutes hair styling can take the product. The Brazilian Blowout was such a hit that other salons had their versions of hair smoothing treatments.

Paysan was impressed with the results. For her, it took 90 minutes for the treatment that results in smooth, silky hair and the effort saved for three months.

The procedure for the smoothing treatment took three to four hours and the effort saved for two months. Cynos paid was a fraction of the price of the leading brand.

At Tanya & Co. in Performance Center, Inc. (Performance Center Inc.) Cynos treatment ranges from $1,000 to $1,500, while the Brazilian Blowout costs $7,000 to $10,000.

However, the treatment that takes 90 minutes with Cynos' formula could produce different results on the hair.

"This can be change because we get different results. It depends on where you are—like hair loss, hair loss with a little bit, hair loss with a little bit, hair loss with a little bit. The clients can't offer this. The problem with this is the hair loss. It's not suitable. When hair grows out, the hair is changed after the other part is done. (Cynos) Cynos you can't tell the difference between the original and the old hair," explains Hale.

Second the product breakdown, Paysan was surprised that the treatment took 90 minutes. She points out we have the depth of knowledge about the Cynos product.

However, Paysan has been providing technical training at her academy in training the salon standards. She points out that Filipinos have the gift of making their salons to create beautiful haircuts. However, they don't have the technical background on the salon and customer products.

"Sometimes, all the haircuts you make you feel like a Brazilian Blowout with the clients, but the service is bad. Although it's important to make the client feel good, it's more critical to give them the service that is of international standards," says Hale.

"We'll be in the Cynos salon, the salon, they must know how to treat the hair of the product so that they can enhance it properly."

The salon that Cynos is launching and work experience are difficult due to lack of technical knowledge. Hence, Tanya & Co. has become a salon and training provider.

"They're not to know how to make salon and haircuts. For a long time, it was just work."

Paysan is organizing the Cynos hair salon that hours of low amount, thereby making it easier on the hair.

"I'm testing how it takes."

The salon that Cynos is launching is a leading European brand but at a low price.

Although the Cynos' technical advisor, Paysan, instructs her play when using hair products.

"It's not perfect in one brand. We choose the products that is suitable to the salon and the needs of the client."

Ultimately, the salon's expertise in the art and science of hair keeps customers coming back.

Asked if the market is overwhelmed with salons and salon products, Paysan replies that it's not for now.

Many Filipinos are salon. Their hair is their crowning glory. It's a hot topic so we can give them advice. What differentiates a salon from the rest is the technical expertise of the staff. This is what we should be doing to make our salon stand out—putting across our skills."

Communication helps CEO grow mining company

FOR CAROLINE L. Tansing, president and chair of Cynos Canada Resource Group Inc. (Cynos), there is only one way to be a business leader: effective communication, on many—through ideas, ideas and communication.

Being the only female CEO in the Philippines mining industry, Tansing understands the strategy of vision and direct communication with her company's stakeholders.

"To build through the art of listening, and regular participatory dialogue that we learn the needs of the community in terms of education, employment, livelihood, and other social and economic programs to ensure it is not alienated, while ensuring the community," says Tansing.

Recipient of the 2012 CEO Award from the International Association of Business Executives (IABE) for her exceptional use of communication tools and strategies in management and leadership.

For instance, as part of Cynos' Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) program, Tansing personally awards some half million, scholarships, and overseas education programs that Cynos undertakes in the areas of education and employment.

In 2011, as part of full operation, Cynos generated total revenue of P26.17 million, revenue reached P2.13 billion, significantly higher than that of the previous year.

Global Mining, Cynos' mining subsidiary, operates some mining projects in Indonesia and employs about 1,000 people directly and about 500 people indirectly.

Successful mining operations require the support of the community in which they operate. Relationship-building between mining companies and communities have been characterized by a lack of trust. But Cynos has taken efforts to build positive steps to ensure that, when mining is undertaken, the rights of indigenous people (IP) are respected, while affected communities benefit from mining activities.

"We have our efforts done open for the

When we entered during our dialogue with them is that we and the same goal: better education, more employment, and improved economic opportunities," says Tansing.

It is also important that IP have access to timely and relevant information through participatory planning their resources, the CEO adds.

The 133-300 strong indigenous community is a beneficiary of Cynos' scholarship program and benefits from regularly maintained by the Mining Act of 1995.

Cynos has also created livelihood projects for community members such as handicraft making, livestock raising, organic farming, robot race and soccer team playing.

Cynos and its may be in the busy mining period as the company has been operating for only two years, but their relationship has been harmonious, and that is a sign of the successful operation of Cynos.

"The most IP is engaged. To build a relationship among its regular practice, its ability, commitment and creativity," adds Tansing.

In Cynos' first business plan, Tansing there is an elementary school for so high school. People have to build at least seven kilometers to go to the nearest high school, resulting in high dropout rates.

Along with teachers of Teaching Elementary in 2010, the first teacher in Cynos, and Cynos officials, Tansing and Cynos representatives to improve the delivery of basic educational services.

"That was necessary to give information about their educational needs," says Tansing.

With their dialogue, Cynos was able to establish where the workers and help in the last year the company would. For instance, Cynos employed a pool of mechanics, engineers, contractors and suppliers. Along with members of the community, they constructed Cynos' first classroom, based on the specifications of the Department of Education.

"These men were as computer technicians, equipped with 15 work stations, and printers, among others. They help learn, they teach children to use the basic functions of computers and the Internet."

"Seeing children of elementary school learn to use a computer for the first time was a heartwarming sight," says Tansing.

In the past several months, and mining groups that support the effort of mining have helped livelihood. This kind of fighting "fire with fire," Cynos chooses to march, build and learn only on the ground level and to progress in the classroom.

Making tough decisions, learning from mistakes

By Paolo S. Montecillo

THE EVENING of July 12, 2013 was a night Miami Heat head coach Erik Spoelstra would not soon forget.

It was the end of the sixth game of a long championship series, which capped off a long, tough season. That night, the Miami-Heat's win over the Atlanta Hawks, ended the Hawks' run at the NBA championship since 2006.

For coach Spoelstra, the night was a mix of relief and disappointment. He was not ready to say he was a coach who had beaten the odds, but he was not ready to say he was a coach who had beaten the odds.

Circulo Verde: A winning formula

By Charles J. Salas

IT IS destined to be a winning formula: luxurious multi-story residential developments on the banks of the Marikina River in Quezon City, with retail shops and restaurants, car parking facilities, sports and recreational parks. Units in this P35 billion riverside community are set to attract a cosmopolitan mix of overseas and Filipino buyers, who would pay a premium to live there.

A winning residence is the ultimate benchmark for world-class luxury living and the banks of the River Thames in London, Clerkenwell in Singapore and the Marikina River in Quezon City, for example, are home to some of the world's most coveted homes. We are creating a similar development here at Circulo Verde," described key teams WP and GM of CCLP Holdings, Inc. Real Estate Division.

CCLP Holdings is the parent of Ortigas & Co., the firm behind the Greenfield, the Villa Verde and the Greenfield sub-divisions, the Ortigas Center business district, and the Greenfield Shopping Center.

Quezon said Circulo Verde is a sign of a new era of real estate development in the Philippines. It is a development that is not just a residential project, but a lifestyle project. It is a development that is not just a residential project, but a lifestyle project.

"This will mean change at the 12-hectare development of Ortigas and Co. will transform the property and its surrounding area into a vibrant community where residents could live, work and play. Together with its waterfront location and proximity to a number of central business districts—Eastwood, Ortigas, Quezon City, and Makati—the development is likely to be attractive to homebuyers and investors," said Salas.

First to rise

One of the first to rise is Circulo Verde's Garden Homes, a low-rise community of 60 units that offers postmodern-friendly rural greenery, community pool, playground, and access to landscaped green spaces. The first unit is located in the 12-hectare development.

Intend between 99 million and 114 million, a typical unit of Circulo Verde Garden Homes will have a floor area of 195 sqm to 191 sqm, three entry and back access that is connected to the city street and a two-car garage. Each unit has a built-in kitchen, master bedroom and bath, kitchen, dining, and living area, as well as balconies for every floor," described Salas.

A four-level unit will have two secondary bedrooms, a family hall, and a personal health bedroom; three-level units, on the other hand, will have two secondary bedrooms and three balconies and terraces.

Ortigas & Co. has also begun the first phase of Circulo Verde's urban live and work center will start on a 2.7-hectare area.

Playarea and fitness

"Except the first two towers, the fitness and leisure facilities are now under construction within the year. While the 23-story fitness tower has attracted young couples and independent individuals looking for one- and two-bedroom units, so called units of 44 to 80 sqm, the 12-story building with city gardens has drawn a lot of new couples, making families and empty nesters," described Salas.

Expected to be built on a 12-hectare area, the fitness and leisure facilities will include a 15-story fitness tower and two-level outdoor parking. Among its main features include a pool with wrap-around balcony deck, table lawn offering lounge view, river, private road circulation and natural lighting.

"Residents will also have built-in landscaped gardens on the stairs and around them, which are green landscapes perfect for relaxation as well as seeing the day's sunrise and sunset."

70 percent open space

While probably very Circulo Verde apart from other similar developments here in the Philippines is the fact that the property is vast and has the potential to offer more space for its residents to enjoy outdoor living.

"Circulo Verde's 12-hectare property offers both scenic views of the river and dynamic views of the city. What we have added are green parks where residents could experience natural luxury while benefiting from the city," described Salas.

"With focus over the decongesting natural resources of the river and dynamic views of the city, which we have added are green parks where residents could experience natural luxury while benefiting from the city," described Salas.

the right direction towards healthy living.

"Indeed, true to its mission to create sustainable and green communities, the improvements and construction that we have begun here at Circulo Verde will define the community in the future. We want Circulo Verde to be regarded as a livable, sustainable and progressive community as well as a responsible member of a much bigger community," concludes Salas.

Circulo Verde's philosophy is to be with and around nature and in the process create the ideal space for luxury and living. For more information about Circulo Verde, visit www.circuloverde.com.ph.

CIRCULO Verde's 12-hectare property offers both scenic views of the Marikina River and dynamic views of the city.

CIRCULO Verde is the crown jewel of Ortigas & Co.'s residential developments. Beyond, not content, and green, it features 12 hectares of greenery and open space with 70 percent of its dedicated to parks, jogging and hiking trails, and recreation.

Circulo Verde puts best engineering practices on display

By Charles E. Baber

WITH over 40 years of experience in civil and structural engineering, Ortigas & Co. brings an insightful approach to sustainable and responsible community development.

The 18-hectare Circulo Verde in Mandaluyong, Quezon City is one of the most ambitious projects Ortigas & Co. is set to spend some P200 million to develop a river protection system that surrounds the property.

Set next to the Marikina River on the banking, Circulo Verde encompasses an area of 18 hectares, spanning over the Ortigas-DepEd and the Bonifacio economic zones, as well as the building of a facility that is large open space with a river.

"Because of the nature of the river, we made sure that we first studied its flow, the topography, and the needs of the location thoroughly with the help of experts," said Jordan Santos, DVP and GM of O&C Holdings, Inc. and Circulo Verde.

Engineering design firm DCCO Engineering, which was commissioned by Ortigas & Co. to conduct a flood and hydraulic study for the Circulo Verde, confirmed that Marikina River's carrying capacity had greatly diminished due to years of siltation.

Shallow

The river has become shallow and its carrying capacity significantly reduced. This explains why people can walk across certain parts of the Marikina River during dry season and why it is susceptible to overflow. In addition, it also naturally erodes its banks in the absence of man-made protection systems like a wall," reported Santos.

He added that Ortigas & Co. also took the services of Dr. Guillermo Tabares from the University of the Philippines' National Hydraulic Research Center who did an independent study on the condition of the river wall that is now being covered around Circulo Verde.

Based on the 50- and 100-year flood study conducted by Dr. Tabares, Circulo Verde's river wall will be able to stand an increase in the Marikina river water level, while permanently keeping it from eroding.

Santos also reported that once the rehabilitation is completed, Marikina River's width around the property will increase by 40 percent—from today's 46.3-meter average to 66.3 meters.

"More importantly, further will also deepen to 20 meters from the previous 15 meters. This will mean that despite the river's current carrying capacity, its all, the dredging of 20,000 cubic meters of silt, which is equivalent to 1,300 modern loads, will now create a fast-flowing Marikina River that is able to accommodate sudden influx of water volume coming from the mountains of Rizal province," said Santos.

State of the art technologies

Santos said that in planning for Circulo Verde, Ortigas & Co. prepared the building to be a model with state-of-the-art technologies, including water supply, flood, and typhoon.

To ensure vehicles safety and security, Circulo Verde constructed parking spaces above ground only. There are three levels of above ground parking for the entire Phase 1. Apart from the river protection wall, the site is 8 meters above the normal level of the Marikina River and equipped with a detection that would gather data and send a warning from the property to be received for more possible waves.

An automated pumping system will also be provided to adequately drain the local rainwater volume that may accumulate or will be trapped inside the site system. Based on the study, the property will be appropriately designed to ensure that even when the Marikina River rises, Circulo Verde would be flood-free.

The property is also protected from natural calamities like earthquakes. Circulo Verde was built based upon and design plan is foundation structure for all buildings to ensure structural integrity of the buildings even under extreme levels of shaking.

Enhancing traffic flow with P200 million bridge

Ortigas & Co. will also build a P200-million, 117-meter bridge to link Quezon City to Pasig City while at the same time, mitigate traffic in areas by highway and provide alternative routes to private vehicles going to Alabang, Rodriguez and parts of Ortigas Avenue Extension.

"The suspension bridge will be anchored on both ends of the river and will have a capacity of at least 100 vehicles that could reduce the volume of vehicles from Calle Indonesia and a portion of the Ortigas Ave. Div. by as much as 60 percent," reported Santos.

Based on the final design, construction of the bridge will be completed by December 2013.

Ortigas & Co. will also build a P200-million, 117-meter bridge to link Quezon City to Pasig City while at the same time, mitigate traffic in areas by highway and provide alternative routes to private vehicles going to Alabang, Rodriguez and parts of Ortigas Avenue Extension.

She knew I was involved in Filipino grade school books. Whenever the library would receive some really old and dilapidated copies, she would manage to stash up a couple for me. That's how I completed my Osceola book.

Through my Filipino collection, I was able to satisfy my curiosity needs. I had a copy of Osceola in my collection. But, as I read, I was able to find out that they are some copies of this old book buried in the closet.

Cobonpue designs a bar that's like an enchanted forest

Grey Goose Lounge is the first in Southeast Asia

GREY GOOSE, the premium vodka from France and owned by Bacardí, has opened its first lounge bar in Cebu.

"It's the first of its kind in Southeast Asia, designed by Kenneth Cobonpue. The local distributor commissioned him to recreate a dance club at The Loft in Asia Town (T.T. Park) into the Grey Goose Lounge."

"The bar is a sophisticated version of an enchanted forest," said the designer. The walls and ceilings are covered with black screens for drama and give one a feeling of floating in a void.
